ABSTRACT

[0080]     A method and system for providing a reusable software control, comprising incorporating the control into an Integrated Development Environment (IDE), wherein a graphical representation of the control can be interactively manipulated, exposing services associated with the control and related to programmatically interacting with a portal, and wherein the control has a customizable interface.